

Mutual Recognition

Mutual Recognition is a process whereby an individual who holds a licence in one state, territory or New Zealand is entitled to be licensed in another state, territory or New Zealand to perform the same work. Mutual Recognition does not apply to a company or partnership.

If you are applying for a licence in Queensland, under Mutual Recognition please be aware that special rules apply. The QBCC may only issue a licence that is equivalent to the licence you already hold.

If your interstate or New Zealand licence is subject to a condition or restriction, the QBCC must impose the same condition on your Queensland licence. Where there is no QBCC licence equivalent to your interstate or New Zealand licence, the QBCC will not be able to issue a licence to you.

Who can apply?

Applicants from: Australian Capital Territory, New South Wales, Northern Territory, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria, Western Australia and New Zealand can apply.

New South Wales applicants

Licences issued by NSW Fair Trading only apply to “Domestic Building Construction Work”. There is no requirement for a contractor to hold a building licence in NSW if they are performing commercial work. As the NSW licence only applies to domestic work, QBCC must restrict your QLD licence to “Domestic Building Construction Work only”.

If you hold a contractor or qualified supervisor licence in NSW, the equivalent QLD licence would be either a restricted contractor licence or restricted nominee supervisor licence.

If you hold a supervisor licence in NSW, the equivalent QLD licence would be a restricted site supervisor licence. A site supervisor licence would entitle you to supervise domestic building construction work as an employee only.

If you wish to perform commercial work in QLD or if you hold a NSW supervisor licence, you need to consider your options. It may be more appropriate and easier to apply for the full licence class under Queensland requirements.

As an alternative, if you hold a contractor licence and you already hold the technical qualification required under the QLD licensing regime you can apply for an unrestricted licence enabling you to carry out both domestic and commercial building work.

As a NSW contractor, if your licence is not limited to any work other than its being restricted to “Domestic Building Construction Work” and you wish to apply for an unrestricted licence when you submit your Mutual Recognition application you must provide the following:

- Trade contractor licence - you are required to meet the minimum technical requirements for the QLD licence, or
- Builder licence - you are required to meet the minimum technical requirements for the licence and supply details of your experience in the commercial sector, with written references, for the full scope of work relevant to the licence class you are applying for.

SA Applicants

Licences issued by Consumer and Business Services in SA could be a supervisor or contractor or both. If you hold a contractor and supervisor licence in SA, the equivalent QLD licence would be either a contractor licence or nominee supervisor licence.

In SA supervisors are not required to satisfy any managerial qualification requirements. Therefore, if you hold a supervisor licence in SA, the equivalent QLD licence would be a site supervisor, conditional contractor or nominee supervisor licence.

The QBCC must place a condition on your nominee supervisor or contractor licence, requiring you to complete an approved QLD managerial course within a specified timeframe.

If you only hold a contractor licence in SA you are not able to apply under Mutual Recognition as QLD does not have an equivalent licence.

NZ Applicants

In NZ, licensees are not required to satisfy any managerial requirements. Therefore, the equivalent QLD licence would be a conditional contractor or nominee supervisor licence. The QBCC must place a condition on your QLD licence, requiring you to complete an approved QLD managerial course within a specified timeframe.

Company licensing

If you intend trade through a company in QLD, the company must hold a licence in its own right. To obtain a QLD licence all companies must have a nominated person (the nominee supervisor) who holds the same licence class as the company.

If you intend to be the nominee supervisor for your company, you must submit a QLD company application at the same time you lodge your Mutual Recognition application. This will enable your company to be issued with the same licence held by you.

Keep your interstate licence active

Your interstate licence must remain active. If your interstate licence is cancelled or suspended prior to approval of a QLD licence, you will not be entitled to a QLD licence based on Mutual Recognition.

If you have any questions regarding your Mutual Recognition application, please contact your local QBCC office or log onto www.qbcc.qld.gov.au
