FREE building seminar for contractors coming to town!

Contractors in the Warwick region are invited to update their building knowledge for FREE at a Contractor Education Seminar on Wednesday 12 August.

The program combines DVDs and advice from technical experts about common building defects.

Building Services Authority general manager Ian Jennings said during the building industry downturn, contractors who attend a seminar can learn to avoid costly defects.

“Doing the job right the first time saves contractors time and money,” Mr Jennings said.

“Contractors that come to a BSA/Construction Skills Queensland seminar will be able to avoid common building pitfalls by learning about best practice methods and new standards and regulations.

“Topics include timber framing, floor tiling and managing your business through tough times.

The seminars are run by the Building Services Authority (BSA) and Construction Skills Queensland (CSQ) throughout Queensland.

“We are committed to ensuring ALL Queenslanders, from Bundaberg to Bamaga have access to this valuable advice,” Mr Jennings said.

All building contractors are welcome to attend, including BSA licensees, employees and subcontractors. Light refreshments will be served, and attendees receive a free information kit.
